equal completeness in the description of similar cases;
full correspondence and no discrepancies among all parts of the monograph and the atlas;
maintaining the so-called "author’s aroma" of writing.

The monograph and atlas were printed separately. The monograph, which was printed first, was done in St Petersburg and took 14 months to print. The atlas was printed in Moscow and took 40 months.

I am sure that, among the VZG products, this publication is one of the best in form and content. But (the Russians are fond of using this conjunction) we have a scholarly saying: If it is written in English as "London", it could be pronounced as "Liverpool". Because of the differences in rules of pronunciation between Russian and English, even common words can be misunderstood; we cannot translate each word directly. If we did that, the original Russian title of the monograph and atlas, when directly translated into English without linguistic editing by a native English-speaking editor, would be Geology and Mineralogy of Late-Jurassic-Quaternary Sedimentary Cover in the Oceans and on the Continents. "But" this is the subject of another aspect of "Editing Around the Globe”.

Thinking about the help we can receive from the membership of associations such as CBE, I am sure that every kind of exchange of ideas and information, approaches, and methods gives us a unique possibility to unite and to enrich our experience as well as to overcome all challenges we meet in our very interesting work.

Changes on the CBE Views Board and Staff

Martha Tacker
Editor
CBE Views

In May, the CBE Views Editorial Board welcomed a new member and approved creation of the staff positions of publication manager and manuscript editor.

The Editorial Board welcomes the appointment of Tom Ferguson to the board. Ferguson brings extensive experience in medical publishing to the board. He has been editor-in-chief of The Annals of Thoracic Surgery for 12 years. Trained in general surgery and thoracic surgery at Duke, Harvard, and Washington University, he has been on the faculty at Washington University School of Medicine, St Louis, Missouri, all his professional life, becoming professor emeritus 2 years ago. Ferguson has served in leadership positions with several surgical societies: the Society of Thoracic Surgeons, the American Association for Thoracic Surgery, the Council of Medical Specialty Societies, the American Board of Medical Specialties, and the American Board of Thoracic Surgery. He fills the position held by Patricia Huston, who completed her term.

We appreciate the many contributions of Huston during her 3 years on the board and look forward to her strong support of CBE Views during her presidential cycle with CBE.

As part of a continuing effort to make the preparation and production of CBE Views more efficient, we have recruited the talents of Grace Darling to serve as publication manager. Darling brings her creativity and experience derived from 18 years serving as the managing editor of Selected Readings in Plastic Surgery, a small, subscription-supported journal. She joined CBE in 1987 and has served on the Author’s Editors and Education committees as well as being on the Central Committee of the Scope & Mandate Task Force. Darling is also leading a spinoff group from the Central Committee charged with compiling, analyzing, and reporting the results of last year’s survey of CBE members. As the content of CBE Views has grown in volume and complexity, so has the process of managing the preparation and production of the publication. As publication manager, Darling will work with the editor and production staff of CBE Views during the prepress stages to find ways to streamline publication of the journal. We are grateful for this added expertise and enthusiasm on the CBE Views staff.

Also, as part of our effort toward greater efficiency, we decided to increase the amount of electronic copyediting. Norman Grossblatt, who as an annual meeting editor (see CBE Views 1996;19 (4):86) has provided electronic editing of the annual meeting reports, agreed to take on additional copyediting and become manuscript editor for CBE Views. For many years CBE Views has benefited from excellent copyediting by Associate Editor C. Grace Gurtowski, who will continue to edit manuscripts for the "Articles" section and to provide wise counsel as the associate editor.
